The Critic. By giving us impressions of their experiences, the critic can prepare us for certain life encounters before we commit to them ourselves. They can help us navigate a seemingly endless maze of food, wine, literature, music, film, art, travel... The list is vast – but not entirely comprehensive. Until now...

Myles Barlow understands the importance of critical review at a depth seldom if ever found before. Why, for example, do people consult their favourite reviewer in the newspaper before deciding whether or not to go to a movie, yet when it comes to a far more grave experience, such as breaking up with one's fiancée, many blunder in headlong, without recommendation or any notion of what to expect?

Myles reviews any human experience his audience can throw at him – usually ones where most fear to tread. From the distressing ordeal of betraying someone, to the bleak existence of becoming homeless, even to risking his life smuggling drugs, Myles Barlow will stop at nothing to show us what an experience feels like before we embark on it ourselves – and then give it a star rating out of five.

Join Myles as he ponders the harrowing effects of murder, the adrenaline rush of stealing, the traumatic experience of divorce, the wonder and joy of sex and much more in his quest to answer life's more difficult questions.
