Hi there,

Sorry for bulk email but I'm reaching out to gauge interest in forming a ABC-Staff climate crisis advisory group.

The Aim

To gather together the brains trust of ABC staffers to develop ways to report on and inform Australians about the climate crisis using a solutions journalism approach.

To report back to ABC Management our ideas and strategies for responding to the climate crisis both internally and externally.

If anyone is interested in taking this idea further let me know. Or perhaps such a group already exists?

Please feel free to share this with others who may be interested.

Thanks in advance,

Barbara

Subject: ABC staff climate advisory group

Hi Mr Anderson

My name is Martin Leonard and I am a researcher for Kenny on Media (Sky News). I refer to the report by the Oz last Monday regarding the so-called ABC staff climate advisory group and the subsequent statement by ABC chair Ita Buttrose last Wednesday that this idea was "not going to happen". However, last Friday Amanda Meade of the Guardian wrote:

But Weekly Beast can reveal the staff move has not been stymied at all. Staff are free to discuss climate change coverage among themselves and are still planning to go ahead with the advisory group, with 77 people expressing an interest already. There has been no edict from above to stop the email chain.

I am attempting to clarify 1) ABC's position on this matter 2) Whether this proposed group would contravene ABC editorial policies 3) Whether ABC management has issued any directions in respect to this proposed group.

If you intend responding, could you please do so by 2pm Monday 25 November (tomorrow).
