

Statement a spokesperson for the Northern Territory Government

The Beetaloo has the potential to deliver significant employment opportunities for Territorians, with the ACIL Allen analysis estimating around 13,000 jobs cumulatively over 20 years, with employment peaking around 2040.

This figure captures the substantial workforce required as the industry moves through exploration, construction, development and ongoing production, creating opportunities across drilling, civil construction, pipeline infrastructure, engineering, transport, maintenance and other supporting industries.

The scale and longevity of this activity means the Beetaloo could provide a pipeline of employment opportunities for Territorians over decades, while supporting the growth of local businesses, skills and capability across the Territory.
