

Statement from Dr Joseph Ajaka:

I answer the questions that are asked of me on the morning show segments. I do not write the scripts or decide the topic to be discussed.

As with all medical procedures there are potential complications.

If I had been asked the question about potential risks I would have been more than happy to highlight these potential complications.

Like any medical professional I take great care to go through all possible risks and complications with patients before any surgery and strongly advise anyone seeking cosmetic procedures to make sure they seek advice from their doctor and have all the information to make an informed decision.

I get contacted occasionally by The Morning Show, A Current Affair and other TV networks, I have appeared on The Morning Show three times this year. Our clinic has also appeared on A Current Affair twice this year.
