Life Architecturally

LIFE ARCHITECTURALLY follows internationally-acclaimed husband and wife team, Robert McBride and Debbie Ryan to discover what inspires their groundbreaking concepts, designs and architecture.

Their outstanding architecture is changing the face of Melbourne and their spiral shaped "Klein Bottle house" achieved the ultimate accolade: the prestigious World Architecture Festival Award in Barcelona (2009) for best residential house in the world.

This dynamic, down-to-earth, married-with-kids couple are leading lights in the modern architectural movement. Many consider their buildings works of art. And as with most art, it's often controversial.

A copper dome shaped house that fits together like a jig-saw puzzle; a beach house that unfurls from a letterbox and a house extension that resembles a cloud. LIFE ARCHITECTURALLY follows the day-to-day lives of Rob and Debbie over a period of one year, examining the intricacies of their unique working relationship and the inspiration behind their iconic and controversial works.

This intimate documentary observes the pressures of building a multi-story, twin-tower development and a revolutionary new school, in the shape of an infinity symbol, alongside the construction and design of their new family home. It follows Rob and Debbie as they prepare their pitch to win the contract to design and construct a prestigious new billion-dollar building that will be the biggest cancer care centre in the Southern Hemisphere. There is a personal reason behind their passion to create a building of hope for cancer patients and their families.

The stakes are high. The vision is bold.
