

Statement from Meta Spokesperson:

“Scammers present a challenge in many environments, including social media. Meta is constantly tackling scams through a combination of technology, such as new machine learning techniques and specially trained reviewers, to identify content and accounts that violate our policies. We are currently also working across industries and with the government to identify new ways to stop scammers.

We encourage people to use our in-app reporting tools when they see any suspicious activity. We encourage those who have fallen victim to scams to reach out to their local law enforcement agency.”
