

PLANET LULIN

A coming-of-age sci-fi comedy
that's out of this world!

Lulin wasn't expecting to develop alien powers or have intergalactic invaders crash the school science comp, but hey, growing up always has a few surprises!

Twelve-year-old Lulin has a human dad and an Astoradian extra-terrestrial mother – and she's just learnt how to blast energy waves out of her fingers! Sweet!

Unfortunately, her astrawaves have been tracked by Megaheads; intergalactic invaders in the form of little girls, who are hunting down Astoradians and banishing them to the Void! Less sweet!

Not that Lulin has any idea. She's too busy trying to win SCI-BOG (the school science comp) with her pals Henri and Spider, all the while dealing with her other extra-terrestrial growing changes. Scorch marks! Wonky astrawaves! Magnetism! Slime!

Lulin's dad, Ken, and her extra-terrestrial grandma, Ezme, want to help, but as Lulin's the first human-Astoradian, no one knows what to expect. Not even the super intelligent (and super grumpy) retired Megahead invader, Bestro, who lives in the attic.

It's not long before Lulin's strange behaviour catches the attention of seemingly perfect Verjonica, rival SCI-BOGGER. Verjonica vows to discover Lulin's secret, whatever it takes. Looks like Lulin will need to master her growing powers, protect her extra-terrestrial truth, win SCI-BOG and escape the Megaheads all at once. No pressure!

VISUAL STYLE

Planet Lulin combines a distinctly suburban setting with cartoonish sci-fi imagery and a retro-digital 90s aesthetic.

The series uses a range of repeated visual conventions throughout, including analogue glitch transitions and VCR tracking lines to bring texture, colour and energy. A 'blue moon fantasy-scape' is used to visually represent Lulin's inner world. This fantasy-scape is initially covered in static and becomes clearer as Lulin learns to quieten her mind.

Special effects take a mixed-media approach, with a focus on vibrancy and fun. There's an extra-terrestrial flower puppet, rotoscope-style astrawaves, green-screen levitation and real-life neon green slime used across the series.

MAIN CHARACTERS

LULIN O'HARA

Lulin's a cheeky optimist who's full of wild ideas – anything that gets her closer to winning SCI-BOG. Her mother won in '98 and Lulin wants to be just like her! Thing is, Lulin's not so great with details—and now that she has Astoradian powers, her impulsive brainwaves often lead to mind-bending calamities! Not that it brings Lulin down. Everything inspires her. House plants! A nonsensical poem! Dirt! If only Lulin knew how to quiet her mind and look inside, she might find the greatest inspiration comes from deep within.

HENRI HENDERSON

Henri is a blunt straight-shooter with a deep knowledge of conspiracies. The teacher? Definitely a shape-shifter. Strange lights at night? Top secret UAPs. And as for aliens, they walk among us. She knows that for a fact! Henri is always up for missions and is perpetually prepared thanks to a vest she wears filled with all kinds of survival gadgets. Henri used to be BFFs with classmate Verjonica until they had a falling out. She's sick of Verjonica flaunting her wins and is determined to beat her in SCI-BOG. But is this really the noblest of missions?

SPIDER MILLS

The equivalent of a Christmas jumper, Spider is warm, sentimental and slightly daggy. He's unconditionally faithful, even if he's a little slow to catch on to certain things. Spider sees the good in everyone around him and lends his sweet, earnest point of view to whatever adventure he's on with his best friends, Lulin and Henri. While Spider loves to make the people around him happy, he does have his own special want. A trophy of his own! And SCI-BOG is his best chance to win one.

EZME ST

Nanna Ezme is a live-wire. Literally! She's an extra-terrestrial who can blast energy waves from her fingers. Ezme is brassy and bold, doing and saying exactly what she wants when she wants – while wearing a wonderfully eccentric outfit! Ezme has been through a lot in her life, but she doesn't let that bring her down, providing her family with endless wisdom and positivity. She's often seen placing garden gnomes around town and is viewed by the locals as a visionary artist. Yet her relentless gnoming has a far more vital purpose than prettifying up their hometown of Bogger's Marsh – and soon enough, all will be revealed...

KEN O'HARA

Lulin's father, Ken, is quiet, warm and earthy. His world exploded with energy when he fell in love with Lulin's mum – an extra-terrestrial from planet Astorad – and though she was taken from him, he holds her memory dear to his heart. Ken is a nurturing soul who cares for the world around him, as reflected in his successful local potting soil company 'U DIG IT'. Ken is highly protective of Lulin and while he's filled with wonder at her burgeoning powers, he's also filled with anxiety, desperate to keep her (and his extra-terrestrial mother-in-law) safe.

BESTRO

Bestro is a retired Megahead invader who has zero patience for human concerns. They are all inferior. Bestro possesses superintelligence and telekinesis. She is incredibly bad-tempered and delivers insults drier than plain toast. Despite being nearly 8,000 years old, Bestro looks like a 9-year-old girl. All Megaheads do. They're a doppelganger species who have eliminated puberty. Bestro lives in Lulin's attic, but she is slowly stepping out into the world through a new love of football.

What inspired you to create the show?

MELANIE: When I was a kid, I loved watching live-action kids shows that were Australian and I've pretty much always wanted to make one. I feel like they have their own particular flavour. Small contained suburb or town with its own personality. Wacky adult characters. Kids running the show and having fantastical hijinks which the town shrugs off. And there's a distinct Aussie humour filtered through everything.

When my son hit pre-teen years it felt like the perfect time to get writing as my house was suddenly filled with pre-teen emotions. Watching my son make his mark in the world is very inspiring. He is both Japanese and Australian and sees himself as double. More is more! Get amongst it! I love his confidence and wanted to make an optimistic show to reflect that kind of mindset.

Why a sci-fi comedy show?

MELANIE: I love sci-fi. It's exciting (and sometimes scary haha) to be immersed in something so fantastic that could actually one day be real. Tablet computers were first seen in Star Trek. VR headsets in the story 'Pygmalion's Spectacles'! But beyond that, sci-fi shows let us step back and see the world around us with fresh perspective. This is great for coming-of-age stories. And as for the comedy, it's just a way for kids to laugh at the absurdity of growing up – and hopefully feel less alone on their weird and wonderful journeys.

What do you want children to take away from the show?

MELANIE: Hopefully after watching, kids will see that all kinds of people and personalities can belong. Everyone has their own unique journeys. You don't need to feel embarrassed. You got this!
